HISTORY

Estimated to have been built in the pre-Roman era and later overrun by the Visigoths in the 7-8th Century (a tomb from this era has been found in one of the vineyards), an archaeological study suggest it later appears to have become a priory on a "St Jacques" de Compostelle route, at some point taking the name "Albars", meaning "saules" or willow trees in Occitan. And so, the name Saint Jacques d'Albas.

From around 1800, the property concentrated on wine production, as the Languedoc had emerged as one of the principal wine-producing areas of France, supplying Paris and industrial areas with affordable wine from 1800 to 1860.

Today, father-son duo Graham and Andrew Nutter have restored the property for accomodations and mended the soils becoming certified organic in 2019 (EcoCert).

VINIFICATION and MATURATION

Mechanical harvesting and 100% de-stemming. Traditional fermentation in temperature-controlled stainless-steel tanks.

VINEYARD

10 year old vines planted to clay and sandstone soil, benefiting from a semi-arid Mediterranean climate.

TASTING NOTES

Deep ruby red with a youthful hue. Violets and black fruits on the nose with light touches of spice. Intense, full-bodied and fleshy attack on the palate showing lots of character.

FOOD PAIRING

Grilled red meats, roasted vegetables, charcuterie, an array of cheeses.
