HISTORY

Vignerons Michael Cooper made wine in Aragon before he and wife Rosario decided to build their own winery in Campo de Borja. Vinos del Viento's namesake comes from the strong winds that carve through the Ebro River Valley -reaching 50km per hour- known as the Cierzo wind.

Cooper is revered as a pioneer in the region, making wines from abandoned single vineyards whose vines weren't producing sufficient fruit for bulk farmers. Nurturing these vines back to health with biodynamic practices has revealed single-vineyard expressions that continue to pique neighboring farmers interests and cultivate both respect and praise in international reviewers press.

With a philosophy of combining tradition and innovation, Cooper has a prevailing mission statement: "[these wines are] unique treasures to preserve and share with the world."

VINIFICATION and MATURATION

Hand-harvested, Élevage starts in stainless steel, then 70% is matured in 500l puncheon American oak barrels. All on indigenous yeasts. Biodynamically vinified. Unfined, unfiltered.

VINEYARD

(Garnacha) Tintorera also known as Alicante Bouschet, is planted to ferous clay soils.

TASTING NOTES

Dark fruited, with ripe plums, blackcurrants and mulberries, and elegant spice aromas. Forward, generous fruit with plush tannins, vanilla, clove and cinnamon on the finish. A juicy, accessible wine with personality. (Decanter - September 2024)

FOOD PAIRING

Chicharon tacos, grilled ribeye and loaded baked potato, Korean BBQ, charcuterie and cheeses.
